Shot Himself in His Home in West Grange -Mr. Edison Says There Nothing Was Wrong With His Business Affairs and Thinks That He Was Insane.

ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 17 .- Placing the gun which he used at the shoots of the Mountainside Gun Club in a corner of his coalbin this morning, John F. Randolph, treasurer of the various Edlson companies and private secretary to Thomas A. Edison, leaned against the barrel and pushed the trigger with a long iron furnace poker. The shot entered his breast just above the heart and Mr. Randolph died almost instantly. At the time he did the act his automobile was waiting for him in front of his residence in Valley Way, West Worry over his business cares is given by his associates as the cause of his suicide. According to the officers of the company his business affairs were perfectly straight. Coming so soon after the indictment of Capt. Nathan C. Horton on charges of larceny and embezzlement of funds of the Edison companies, there was a suspicion that perhaps the suicide was involved. This Mr. Edison, William E. Gilmore, general manager and president of the Edison companies and Alphons Westee, secretary and general auditor of the companies, denied emphatically.

"John Randolph has been with me for thirty years, since he was a boy of 15," said Mr. Edison. "He entered my employ as an office boy when my plant was at Menlo Park. He has always had my esteem and confidence. His accounts are right to the last cent and there is not a question about any complications.

"Mr. Randolph was very particular as to how work was done. He had all the assistance he wanted. I do not believe his insanity was brought on through overwork. Not very many peo-ple ever knew of it, but it is a fact that about fifteen years ago he went away and was gone for two weeks. At that time our impression was that he was out of his mind, for when he returned he was unable to give any explanation as to where he was or why he so strangely disappeared. Another thing that makes me think he was temporarily insane is that his brother temporarily insane is that his brother died in the Trenton insane asylum a few months ago. His death was caused by typhoid fever, but he had been in the in-

In the dead man's room there were five letters. One was addressed to Mrs. Randolph, in which the writer declared that whatever property he had belonged to his wife and children and that he had come by all of it honestly and had never been guilty of a wrongful act. Another letter was directed to Mr. Gilmore, and while Mr. Randolph said nothing in it about suicide he gave directions as to certain busicide he gave directions as to certain busicide. cide he gave directions as to certain busi-ness matters which had to be attended to to-day. Another letter was to Peter Weber, to-day. Another letter was to Peter Weber, superintendent of the phonograph works. The others were to Mr. and Mrs. Edison. The dead man, in addition to acting as private secretary to Mr. Edison, attended to many business matters for Mrs. Edison. The latter went to the Randolph house soon after the suicide and remained there for a long time.

long time. When Patrick Brady, who ran Mr. Randolph's automobile. ran up to the house this morning Mr. Randolph went to the door and remarked that he would be out as soon as he looked at the furnace. A few seconds later the shot was heard. Mrs. Randolph ran to the cellar and found her busband in the coal bin. He was scarcely breathing. Her screams brought in Brady, as well as persons who live next door. Dr. Samuel A. Muta and Dr. William M. Brien wife summoned, but except for caring for Mrs. Randolph, who was prostrated, they could do nothing.

Mrs. Randolph, was 45 years old and devoted to his business and home. He took little recreation, except riding in his automobile or shooting clay pigeons. He seldem went on a vacation. His disposition dom went on a vacation. His disposition was retiring. He did not attend the dinner was retring. He did not attend the dinner given by the laboratory employees to Mr. Edison last week on the occasion of the inventor's sixty-first birthday. He was to have gone out last night to spend the evening, but changed his mind and spent the time in his room avidently writing the his time in his room, evidently writing the letters which were found to-day.

S. P. LANGDON FINED $1,000.

He's the Pennsylvanian Who Got Rings for Bonds in Newark-Brother Will Pay Fine. Charged with larceny and receiving, Samuel P. Langdon, said to be the son of a wealthy coal operator of Scranton, Pa., was fined $1,000 by Judge Ten Eyck in Newark yesterday. Langdon pleaded guilty to the charge on January 6. He had no money and was sent to jail. His brother, John Langdon of Scranton, said he would pay the fine.

Langdon was arrested by Detective Sergeant Kuhn of Newark police headquarters at Liberty and West streets, New York, on September 25 last. A week before Langdon went to the store of J. Wiss & Langdon went to the store of J. Wiss at Sons on Broad street, Newark, and obtained a three stone diamond ring valued at $725 and a diamond Princess ring worth $500. Langdon left two $1,000 gold bonds of the New York and Pittsburg Air Line as security. The understanding was that he would return to the store and pay for Langdon was not heard from and it was

"Please advise if you think the expe dition can be financed." The police do not believe it can.

ROOSEVELT WAS BADLY LICKED. Judge of New Famous Boxing Bout Tells How Hanks Walloped Him.

BOSTON, Feb. 17.-Edward C. Ellis, whose letter published in THE SUN yesterday again confirmed the fact that Theodore Roosevelt did not win the lightweight boxing championship while a student at Harvard, to-day gave an interview in which he made public more details of the bout between Charles Stedman Hanks and Roosevelt. Mr. Ellis was one of the judges at the boxing

"Why, man, you may take it from me that if Charlie Hanks had let himself out while boxing with Roosevelt at the Cribb Club there would never have been any Roosevelt in the White House

"Except for the fact that he took his punshment very well he apparently knew nothing about the boxing game. He had the fault that most college undergraduates have—he did not know how to take a blow. He stood in the ring, his famous teeth showing bright, and Hanks pelted him on the nose and all over the face with ease. Roosevelt presented a pitiable sight at the end of the third round, being covered with blood from head to waistline.

"He reminded me of having come in contact many times with the big stick which

IN THE MIDST OF ALARMS. Engines and Fireboats Perform for Hospital Going Sallor.

Three times within an hour yesterday afternoon firemen on the West Side responded to false alarms. Twice they went to box 432, at Eleventh avenue and Thirtythird street, and once to box 470, at Twelfth avenue and Thirty-seventh street. 470 call brought the fireboats New Yorker and McClellan in addition to three engine companies and two trucks.

Edward Neuberger, formerly a sailor on the United States lighthouse tender-Arbutus, sent in all the alarms. He was seen leaving the box the last time and held

"Did you turn in all these alarms?" asked Magistrate Wahle of the prisoner.

"Maybe I did, I don't know," replied Neuberger. "I saw the boxes open and took hold of the hooks. The next thing I knew the engines came. Perhaps I did send in the alarms."

The Magistrate was eveing the prisoner.

The Magistrate was eyeing the prisoner

"Were you in court here this morning?"
he asked Neuberger.

Neuberger said that last summer on the Arbutus he got typhoid fever and spent three months in the marine hospital at Key West, Fla. He came north in the fall and had to go to Bellevue for two months. Also he had had a drink or two.

"What did the doctors tell you?"

"They said I had softening of the brain."

"Well," said the Magistrate, "I am going to give them another chance to examine you. I'll hold you here and see if you should be sent to the psycopathic ward for examination. I don't know that they would let you in on your own admission."

OVERDOSE OF DYNAMITE Hurts Four Persons and Breaks Windows

A heavier blast than usual in the Pennsylvania Railroad's excavation at Sixth avenue and Thirty-second street at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning shook a few plate glass windows out of their foundations and smashed a good many common windows. Otto Jorgensen, a porter in D. A. Doyle's trunk store, who was carrying a trunk upstairs, fell down again, breaking an ankle and receiving bruises. Three women getting off a Sixth avenue car almost directly over the blast fell and were later treated by an ambulance surgeon.

The police decided that the workmen in charge of the blast had made a mistake in the guantity of explosive used.

HER HOME AND CHILD BURNED. Long Branch Woman Had Gone Calling, Leaving Her Boy in His Crib.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Feb. 17.-While she was at the home of a neighbor to-day Mrs Joseph Warner's house in Brighton avenue Joseph Warner's house in Brighton avenue was destroyed by fire. Her eighteenmonths-old son John was burned to death. The boy was left asleep in his crib in the kitchen. His three-year-old sister May was with him. As Mrs. Warner was about to start for home she saw the kitchen ablaze and her little daughter running toward her. The woman swooned.

When the firemen got into the kitchen it was too late to save the child.

GOT W. K. YANDERBILT SILVER

HOW OR JUST WHEN'S A PUZZLE -MAN ARRESTED.

vegro Caught Pawning Some of it Said to Have Robbed Morgan and Yerkes Homes — Family Plate Was Under Cover - 8000 Worth Was Servants'.

About $600 worth of silverware disappeared from the residence of W. K. Vanderbilt at 650 Fifth avenue in some unknown manner last Thursday night. John Anderson, a negro, was held in $1,000 bail in Jefferson Market court yesterday charged with having a small quantity of it in his possession. Inspector McCafferty, chief of de tectives, said he was sure that Anderson is the same man as Elijah C. Harvey, who in 1899, was sent to the Elmira Reformatory for entering the houses of C. T. Yerkes and J. P. Morgan and making off with several hundred dollars worth of plate and knick-

The police notion is that Anderson slipped into the house on Thursday afternoon when some trunks were being removed in preparation for Mr. Vanderbilt's departure for Europe on Saturday. The family plate already had been locked up. Only the silver used by the servants was left out. This was cleaned and counted by Minnie Walker, one of the maids, on Thursday night at 7 o'clock, and put away in a small wooden chest. Next morning it was not there.

The house is watched every night by its individual watchman, besides the servants and the Holmes police. None of these had reported anything out of the way, but practically all the silverware left out for the use of the servants during Mr. Vanderbilt's absence was gone. This silver numbered several dozen knives, forks and spoons besides salt and pepper shakers, a soup spoon and other articles.

A burglary guarantes company after spoon and other articles.

A burglary guarantee company after working on the case with its private detectives appealed to Inspector McCafferty. McCafferty had his men look the house over, but no indication of any burglary could be found. If the burglar slipped in on Thursday afternoon he easily could have got out without leaving any trace. Mrs. Vanderbilt was not willing to have the servants, most of whom have been with the family a long time, searched. They insisted on this, however, and their effects were gone through. The police assured them selves that the burglary had not been an inside job.

selves that the burglary had not been an inside job.

Inspector McCafferty then had the pawnshops watched. Detective Boyle saw Anderson go into a pawnshop near Sixth avenue and Thirty-second street with a basket and offer to dispose of a lot of silverware "worth twice as much" for $300. He offered as samples a spoon, a fork and a pepper shaker, all marked Tiffany & Co. and the last bearing the initials W. K. V. Anderson's arrest followed. He denied that he had been concerned in any robbery and said he had been selling the silver for a friend.

MEXICO JAILS AMERICANS. Men Who Seek Work on Railroads in Dan-

GALVESTON, Feb 17 .- Advices from Mexico announce the arrest of many Americans who are seeking employment there. One report says there are over 100 Americans, many of them railroad men, in Mexican jails as vagrants, and that many of them will be sentenced to hard labor or long imprisonment. The authorities have issued orders that the railroads will be held responsible for every person carried free on their trains from the States or from point to point in Mexico. The railroads have in turn issued strict orders that any trainmen caught carrying unemployed railroad men on their trains without a duly accredited pass will be dismissed from the service. The railroad officials declare they will issue no passes except for men actually engaged and that there are already more men in Mexico than are needed.

Reports from American employees on the Mexican lines say that good railroad men are needed but that the present antagonistic spirit of the Mexican authorities is prompted by the natives whose places were being taken by the Americans. The natives prevailed upon the Mexican officials, who issued orders to the railroads and then began jailing Americans they found searching for work. are needed.

Americans working on the Mexican roads Americans working on the Mexican roads point to the fact that up to three weeks ago experienced railroaders from the States received work and that in the past two months nearly 150 Americans found employment on Mexican railroads, many of them replacing Mexicans, who are competent only for certain branches of the service.

PAYS FINE OF MAN HE ACCUSED. A Lesson in Kindness to Animals Costs the Teacher $10.

It cost Inthrop Baldwin a lot of time and trouble and a ten dollar bill to try to teach Benjamin Howell, 19 years old, of 392 Van Buren street, Brooklyn, a lesson of kindness

Mr. Baldwin lives at 68 Sanford avenue, Flushing, and works for a life insurance company in Manhattan. On Saturday, as he was passing Prospect avenue and King street, he saw a truck in the mire and young Howell, the driver, beating the horses unmercifully. He asked the young man to top it, but he wouldn't, and so Baldwin called Policeman Kelly and had the young man arrested.

Mr. Baldwin was on hand yesterday morning when Howell was arraigned before Magistrate Fitch in the Flushing police court. The prisoner admitted his guilt.

"I don't want this young man sent to jail." said Mr. Baldwin, "but I think he ought to be taught a lesson as to how to treat horses. I can't stand to see animals abused."

"I agree with you," replied the Magistrate. "I think he ought to be punished even if he has to go to jail, so I'll fine him $10 or ten days in jail."

Young Howell gasped and turned around in a bewildered way. A court officer was about hustling him back to the pen when Mr. Baldwin stepped forward.

"I'll pay his fine," he said, producing a, ten dollar bill. "My object was only to teach him a lesson."

Mr. Baldwin and the driver left the court together. Mr. Baldwin was on hand yesterday

Woman Killed by Falling Downstairs.

Mrs. John Quill, 70 years old, of 2673 Eighth avenue, fell down a flight of stairs last night in the tenement at 313 West 141st skepet, where she was visiting her daughter. She struck on her head and died within half an hour. WORKING TO FREE VAN SCHAICK. Masters, Mates and Pilots Association Draws Up Petition for a Pardo

A meeting of local and national committees appointed by the American Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots to agitate for the pardon of Capt. William Van Schaick, who has been sentenced to ten years imprisonment for criminal negligence in the burning of the General Slocum, was held last night at the headquarters of the association. Capt. Van Schaick is member of the national committee.

The draft of a petition to President Roosevelt for a pardon was approved and copies will be sent at once to all the locals throughout the country for signatures. As the sentence goes into effect next Tuesday Capt. Van Schaick will have to go to prison.

The petition sets forth among other things that Capt. Van Schaick did the best thing to be done in his judgment in keeping the vessel on its course until it was beached off North Brother Island, that owing to the vague wording of the laws there were no officers below the cap-tain with certificates of inspection, that he could not have left his post in the pilothouse without violating the law and that in his present physical condition and on account of his age he would not live on account of his age he would not live to serve out the sentence.

There was a conference late in the after-noon between Capt. Van Schaick and Gen-eral Manager Dow of the association. Capt. Van Schaick appeared to be very feeble, having to be assisted in going up and down stairs.

General Manager Dow said that the Maritime Association would meet next Tuesday and take up the case. Contributions toward the expenses incident to the agitation were coming in. Subscriptions of $100 each were received from President F. D. Underwood of the Eric Railroad, John Arbuckle of Arbuckle Bros., Brooklyn, and W. H. Patterson of the Logan Club

HER CAPTAIN DEAD ALONGSIDE. La Bretagne Brings Details of the Loss of

With the French Line steamer La Bretagne in yesterday from Havre came the details of the death of Capt. Pierre Verlynde, who had commanded her for eight years. Capt. Verlynde had left his home at 10 o'clock the night before the vessel was to sail to go aboard. No one saw him aboard the steamer, but his room when examined the next morning, showed that it had been occupied. As the sailing hour approached a messenger was sent to his home and his wife sent back word that Capt. Verlynde had left the night before

Then the body was found floating along-side the ship. There was a deep cut on the back of the head, but no other injuries could be found. His watch and money were in his pockets. It is thought that some time in the night he started to go ashore, slipped on the gangway and fell headfirst to the float moored alongside.

Capt. Pardrigeon brought La Bretagne Signor Cerutti, an invalid cabin passenger, bound to the Pacific Coast, died just as the steamship reached quarantine.

Mrs. Sears's Will Probated.

BOSTON, Feb. 17.-The will of Mrs. Caroline B. Sears, who committed suicide by jumping from a window of the St. Regis jumping from a window of the St. Regis Hotel in New York about a month ago, was proved to-day in the Essex County Probate Court. There are two children, both girls, now living, and Mr. Sears is named as executor of the will. One hundred thousand dollars is left to the Industrial School for Crippled Children of Boston, $200,000 is to be divided among various institutions to be selected and $80,000 is left to the Boston Lying-in Hospital, all of these bequests being conditional on the death of the husband without issue surviving.
